Chapter 401: The Evolution of the Divine Jewels

In the boundless expanse of the True Absolute One Domain Realm, Sung Jin-Woo stood before his reflection, gazing at the shimmering jewels embedded within his form. These Divine Jewels, once five in number, had evolved into nine as his powers grew exponentially. Each jewel was a manifestation of his divine energy, a symbol of his ascension to godhood, and each one was now more powerful and connected than ever before.

The jewels were embedded in his body, each one pulsating with the energy of the cosmos. Two of them were located at the palms of his hands, their radiance a blinding spectacle. These jewels, more than mere ornaments, granted him unparalleled power. His hands could now wield telekinesis with far greater strength than before, effortlessly manipulating vast amounts of matter and energy. No longer was he limited by the physical world; with a mere thought, he could crush mountains or move stars. But it was not just telekinesis that these jewels granted him—the laser beams they emitted were capable of cutting through the very fabric of reality itself, tearing through time and space with ease.

The other two jewels were embedded at the soles of his feet, glowing with an ethereal light. These jewels provided a stability that no other being in the multiverse could match. His ability to levitate had now reached a level of perfection where he could float effortlessly above any surface, his movement smooth and without any disruption. Even without the use of his wings, Sung Jin-Woo could defy gravity, soaring through the air or across dimensions with unmatched precision and stability.

Each of the nine Divine Jewels was more than a simple focus for power; they were interconnected with the very core of his being. The three hearts within his body, each one a source of incredible power, were tied to the jewels, as were his brains, the command center of his divine form. The neural network that connected the jewels, hearts, and brains was a complex system, one that allowed Sung Jin-Woo to control the vast expanse of his powers effortlessly. His consciousness was no longer limited by mere thoughts; it flowed through the jewels, the hearts, and the very fabric of existence itself.

As the jewels pulsed with divine energy, a surge of power flooded through his being. He felt more connected to the realms, more in tune with the essence of creation and destruction. The nine Divine Jewels were not just symbols of his ascension; they were an extension of himself, embodying the perfect harmony between body, mind, and divinity.

The Divine Jewels also served as conduits for the immense cosmic forces that flowed through him. With a single thought, Sung Jin-Woo could call upon the energy of the multiverse, shaping it to his will. The energy of the three hearts resonated with the jewels, creating an infinite loop of power that was both limitless and stable.

The jewels fed into each other, creating a perfect balance between creation and destruction, light and shadow, order and chaos.

Sung Jin-Woo closed his eyes, allowing himself to fully absorb the immense energy flowing through his body. He could feel the power of the nine Divine Jewels coursing through his veins, through his very essence. His mind expanded, and his awareness spread across the realms. He could sense every flicker of energy, every whisper of life, every shift in the fabric of reality. It was as though he had become one with everything, a being beyond all understanding, transcending the limits of even the gods.

"This is the true power of the Divine Jewels," Sung Jin-Woo mused, feeling the jewels' connection to him deepen. "With this, I can reshape the realms, the very nature of existence itself."

As he stood in his divine form, his consciousness stretched beyond the boundaries of the True Absolute One Domain Realm, reaching into the farthest corners of the multiverse. The nine Divine Jewels glowed brighter, their power pulsing in rhythm with his heartbeat. With a single gesture, Sung Jin-Woo could manipulate the fabric of the multiverse, bending it to his will. His divine abilities had transcended mortal understanding—no force, no being, no entity could challenge him now.

In this new state of power, the possibilities were endless. Sung Jin-Woo, the True Absolute One, had achieved a new pinnacle. The nine Divine Jewels were not merely symbols of his divinity—they were the embodiment of his limitless power, the key to unlocking the ultimate potential of the realms. With each jewel, he drew closer to an understanding of the entire cosmos, and with each pulse of energy, the multiverse bent to his will.

The journey of the True Absolute One had only just begun, and the path ahead was limitless. With the power of the nine Divine Jewels, Sung Jin-Woo was prepared to shape the future of the multiverse and stand as its eternal ruler.